OPEN FORUM

1. M. Hale: spoke in favor of the resolution on the agenda, Resolution in Support of Students' Flexible Attendance and Participation at Santa Rosa Junior College. Referenced a Press Democrat quote from 2018 from previous SRJC President Frank Chong, who pledged to resist federal immigration enforcement on campus and protect undocumented students. Urged faculty colleagues to resist rising fascism by practicing empathy as a form of civil disobedience, particularly in support of undocumented students. Citing recent ICE activity in Sonoma County, called on faculty to extend flexibility in attendance, makeup work, and access to materials. Emphasized accommodations are essential to reflect higher education's commitment to justice, freedom, and the community. His full remarks can be viewed here.
2. M. Von der Porten: Spoke as a citizen concerned about SRJC's marketing. Acknowledged outreach efforts to Hispanics, LGBTQ+, and first-generation students but cautioned that focusing too heavily on specific groups may unintentionally alienate others, including conservative students and those from more traditional backgrounds. Stated that fewer top local high school graduates are enrolling and highlighted demographic groups such as students from two-parent families, conservative families, straight students, and English-proficient students, asking whether SRJC also “welcomes” them.

3. T. Johnson: Previous Senator, contract faculty for over 18 years, Disability Resources specialist, and coordinator of the Adapted Physical Education program, thanked those who assisted her intense advocacy for the Senate Chambers transition into a more accessible space for members and guests. Emphasized that this change, achieved after three and a half years of effort, represents meaningful action rather than performative statements. Johnson encouraged colleagues to continue advocating for needed changes with kindness, compassion, and courage, reminding them that their presence and voices make a difference.
4. A. Garcia: Superintendent / President of SRJC addressed the Senate to welcome back faculty at the start of the academic year, recognizing students’ return across all campuses and sites. Thanked faculty for welcoming all students, whether first-time or continuing learners, and expressed pride in the rollout of the District’s new strategic planning initiatives. The priorities highlighted were academic quality, student success and support, responsiveness to the community, and campus climate and culture. Appreciation was given to senators for their service in strengthening the voice of the college.

- Senator Aspinall made a motion to move the item to Action at the next Senate meeting, seconded. Hearing no discussion on the motion, President Stover called for the vote and the motion passed unanimously.

2. AP7120 Contract Faculty Hiring Procedure - Topics to be Addressed (in order, to begin)

- I. Shall Students be included on all Contract Faculty Hiring Committees? And if so, how?
- II. Shall Outside Faculty (read: outside of department/discipline) be included on all Contract Faculty Hiring Committees? And if so, how?
- III. Other questions as raised along the way.

- b) From 4.3.2p to AP 7120A Contract Faculty Hiring \(Slide Deck from May 21st Special Listening Session\)

- I. Shall Students be included on all Contract Faculty Hiring Committees? And if so, how?
 - Senators advocated for student inclusion in the hiring process but opposed the recent draft giving students equal voting power on contract faculty hiring committees; noted students are not discipline experts and may lack full perspective on what makes an effective teacher
 - Teaching demonstration piece of interview process was referenced by associate faculty as possible advantage/disadvantage if prior student(s) included
 - Senators expressed support for including students in hiring committees, emphasizing that students can provide valuable insight and that a truly student-centered institution should consider their perspective in decision-making.
 - Senator spoke in favor of including students in all aspects of the hiring process except confidential materials, emphasizing that engaging adult learners respects their experience and prevents perpetuating outdated “sage-on-the-stage” models of higher education.
 - Logistical concerns mentioned for scheduling six-person committee
 - Senators noted that students on hiring committees provide valuable perspectives on teaching effectiveness, communication, collaboration, empathy, and anti-racism, even if not discipline experts; they emphasized that operational procedures could support consistency and reduce bias and cited examples of effective student participation in other hiring contexts.
 - Senator suggested creating a non-voting student advisor role on hiring committees to provide feedback on teaching demonstrations and candidate questions, allowing student input without granting full voting power.

- President Stover concluded the topic by referencing CCR §51023.7, noting that governing boards must give reasonable consideration to student recommendations on hiring and evaluation of faculty, administration, and staff.
- II. Shall Outside Faculty (read: outside of department/discipline) be included on all Contract Faculty Hiring Committees? And if so, how?
 - Senator noted outside members have historically been used as needed for expertise or staffing and questioned the requirement as all-or-nothing.
 - Senator emphasized that including outside faculty is best practice for providing an impartial perspective on teaching, communication, equity, diversity and inclusion (EDI), and soft skills, noting it does not delay hiring processes and that operational safeguards exist to ensure committee efficiency and consistency.
 - Senators spoke in favor of diversifying the hiring committee and thus faculty and noted the procedure can always be revised.

President Stover announced the discussion item's time concluded but will be brought back at the following meeting with Senator Bunas and Senator Melvin first in the queue.

BREAK

INFORMATION

Presentation on Three New GenAI Features Debuting in Canvas

Distance Education Director Lisa Beach was introduced, and President Stover announced the rest of the time would be dedicated to the Information Item: a presentation on the three new opt-in Gen AI features in Canvas.

L. Beach attended Canvas' annual conference, InstructureCon, where a partnership between Instructure and OpenAI, was announced. L. Beach:

- Demonstrated in a test Canvas course three Tools:
 1. Discussion Summary – Instructor-only tool that summarizes discussion posts using AI; helps instructors identify misconceptions or gaps in student responses. Can refine summaries by keyword context.
 2. Smart Search – AI-enhanced search available to faculty and students; searches course content contextually, not just literal text matches, helping locate assignments or topics.
 3. Khanmigo Teacher Tools – College-level prompts for discussion and teaching support; generates discussion ideas by subject; teacher must manually copy/paste prompts; doesn't analyze course content.
- Noted the first two tools are still in Feature Preview, actively being developed and refined.
- Informed the body that each tool's "nutrition facts" can be searched to determine underlying AI technology

Senator Q &A:

- Asked: how to verify privacy and intellectual property policies for AI tools in Canvas, particularly regarding data Open AI may access or store from course content.
- Answered: Canvas/Instructor tools terms of use and “nutrition facts” detail FERPA compliance, handling of personally identifiable information (PII) like student IDs, and which tools read course content. Recommended checking OpenAI’s official privacy policy and data usage terms to see what is collected and stored.
 - o Referenced: spreadsheet of relevant links in the Canvas community for privacy and compliance information (PDF linked here)

Senator Tircuit made a motion to move the item to the Discussion Agenda of the next meeting, seconded. Point of order made that a motion is not necessary, but the request was noted by ASEC.

- Senator concerns included that AI tools in Canvas were implemented without faculty input and may undermine critical thinking, skill development, and intellectual property, while raising ethical and privacy issues.
- Senators also expressed concerns AI undermines faculty responsibility to give individual attention, devalues student contributions, and interferes with proper time management and teaching obligations.
- Clarified: AI tools in Canvas are entirely opt-in, have not been implemented by default, and using them is not mandatory.
- Question of purview and if the Academic Senate should consider whether introducing AI aligns with academic standards and excellence, while respecting faculty academic freedom.
- Question was also raised regarding the security of faculty and student data, which was not answered.

With no time remaining on the item, President Stover concluded the meeting by asking faculty to consider their responsibility to the students, their future, and the workplace they are entering, which is requiring them to use AI.
